“What a great way to use technology to excite the students about learning. It encouraged and engaged the reluctant readers; it gave the learning a live event to look forward to and provided a forum to understand the author’s intent and motivation. [...] It was a tremendous success with our learners of the 21st Century. I strongly recommend such an activity for a comprehensive reading program. [...]” Michael Walkington, principal of Bessborough Drive Elementary School in Toronto wrote last year about a Skype presentation from author Don Sawyer in his school.

Virtual author readings are cost-effective, easily arranged, and fun. Our authors are able to engage learners in writing activities, enthuse young writers, and discuss the writing process clearly and entertainingly.

Mindy Gatt, a 5th grade teacher at Toronto’s Northlea Elementary Middle School, had this to say about Don Sawyer’s Miss Flint Skype reading: “It was a fantastic experience—especially for those who have never used the technology. The kids love your stories. They really are truly laugh-out-loud funny!”

Our virtual author tours usually last between 30 and 45 minutes, except when everyone has so much fun that they forget to check the clock!
